Definitions

A pecuniary interest is an interest because of a reasonable likelihood or expectation of appreciable financial gain or loss. Money does not have to change hands for there to be a pecuniary interest.

Examples of pecuniary interest may include:

- Holding shares in an entity proposing or carrying out all or part of the project
- Holding a private contract with the project
- Receiving funding or grants from the project.

A non-pecuniary interest is an interest that is not financial but arises from personal, family or workplace relationships, beliefs, or involvement in social, cultural, political, religious or sporting activities.
